SMUGGLING OF ALIENS GROWS MORE SERIOUS

Customs Officials Declare Border Patrol Can't Check Traffic

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—Practical exhaustion of the immigrant quotas for foreign countries resulted today in orders for increased vigilance by customs and immigration authorities, to prevent smuggling in of contraband aliens.

Reports coming to the government indicated that from 50 to 150 aliens are crossing the borders of this country daily.

Unless additional funds to increase customs and immigrant patrols are provided by congress, the authorities are not hopeful that any great check can be applied.

Officials said that while alien smuggling has been stopped thru seaports, surreptitious entry over the Mexican border can not be eliminated without more men.

The border patrols are just now charged with responsibility to prevent the smuggling of firearms and other war materials to the Mexican

GRIFFITH IS CHARGED WITH GIRL'S MURDER

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 11—Louis E. Griffith, president of the United Machine & Mfg. Company was charged with first degree murder here this morning in connection with the death of pretty 19-year-old Ruth Hunter, and held on $25,000 bond.

He will be given a preliminary hearing next Tuesday. Bond was not furnished at once and the prisoner was remanded to jail.

Filing of the charges against the wealthy manufacturer brings to a climax a mystery which has baffled police since Wednesday night, January 2, when the pretty little Canton girl was found dead on the Richville-Reedurban road near this city.

Tuesday Griffith was arrested on a charge of suspicion in the case and for 39 consecutive hours he was mercilessly grilled by detectives. He was held the full 72 hours permitted by law and then the charge of murder was lodged. Griffith pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Mrs. Marry K. Griffith, wife of the grilled man, came to police headquarters Thursday afternoon at the instance of Police Chief Lengel and is said to have substantiated her husband's alibi as to his movements on the night the Hunter girl's body was found.

According to detectives who talked with her Mrs. Griffith said she met her husband at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, about 8:50.

On leaving the church she said, they went to the Valentine teeatre and then home.

Accompanied by Detective Pilcher, Mrs. Griffith left police headquarters Thursday afternoon about 5:30 and drove to a home in the northwest section. She returned with a woman who is said to have told detectives she saw Griffith at the church at the time designated by him and his wife.

At police headquarters Mrs. Griffith talked with Chief Lengel, Captain Clarke, Captain Swope, Solicitor Thomas M. Miller, assistant solicitor James E. Kinnison, Prosecutor C. B. McClintock and Detectives Fromme and Stretenberger.

LOCKARD FUNERAL SATURDAY AT 2:30

Funeral services will be held at the United Brethren church Saturday afternoon at 2.30 for Mrs. Earl Lockard, Locust-st, who died at the City hospital yesterday.

The procession will leave the late residence at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and proceed to the church, where the Rev. C. J. McGee, pastor of that church will officiate. Burial will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

Members of the Pythian Sisters and the Royal Neighbors will meet at K of P. hall Saturday afternoon to attend the funeral in a body.

OIL FEVER DRAWS FARMER FROM FIELDS AND CAUSES DEPRESSION, SAYS EXPERT

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 11—High freight rates were forced to share the position of chief farm disturber today when reports from various sections of the Southwest revealed that oil and gas development has created a chaotic condition in many formerly prosperous farming counties in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Northern Texas.

While farms in general have not suffered to a great extent, one grave enough to be considered alarming, serious consequences were foreseen by many county agents unless farmers spend more attention on farm production and less work in oil development.

The report of J. W. Riley, county agent of Creek County, Oklahoma, is cited as representative of the consensus of agriculturists queried. He said—

"Agricultural conditions in my county were worse at the beginning of the year than at that period of the year during the last decade.

"Coupled with the financial status in the county we might say the morale of the farm folk was just about as low as it could possibly get, from the viewpoint of successful agriculture.

"As has been stated in previous reports, the oil and gas spirit of development and production has created a chaotic condition.

"Quite a number of good farms, wholly or in part, were idle this year because of the demand at the opening of the agricultural activity for workers and teams in the oil fields.

"A number of these farms, owned by good farmers and good business men, lay idle because a renter for one year could not be depended upon to attend to the farm thruout that period, the tenant would get his crop planted, and when an opportunity presented itself, would take his team to work in the oil fields, neglecting his farm interest and that of his landlord.

"No permanent agricultural development can be done here or in any other sector until the landowner himself is imbued with the idea that productive soil is the basis of all permanent prosperity. While many land holders will ad-

RANKS OF BONUS BOOSTERS IN CONGRESS ARE THINNED BELOW THE NUMBER NEEDED

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1924.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Capitol Hill is just now the scene of one of the most unprecedented situations in recent legislative history. The pledges to pass a soldier bonus bill are more than sufficient numerically to carry the measure thru, but the wave of public opinion which has swept the house and senate is so strong for tax revision that the embarrassments to individual members are accumulating daily.

If a vote were taken today on how congress really feels about the soldier bonus it would not become law. Not enough votes would be polled to override the presidential veto which is inevitable. The lines of the bonus advocates have been steadily weakening for several days. Expressions from all parts of the country have been so emphatic that many members who are not yet willing publicly to say they have changed are beginning to fall in line with the tactics of Representative Longworth, majority leader of the house, who wants to give the tax bill right of way and consider the bonus bill afterwards. He knows perfectly well that once a tax bill is passed, the chances of reopening the revenue measure to provide funds for the payment of a bonus will be slim indeed. If any one could devise a way to relieve members of congress of pledges given at a time when tax reduction was not thot of as a rival issue, he would change the situation overnight. Mr. Longworth is endeavoring to stall the bonus along so that members will have the excuse that the government cannot afford it and that the passage of a bill without means of providing payment is not advisable.

The bonus men have not diminished

OIL REFUSES TO ASSOCIATE WITH BOOTLEG LIQUOR

CINCINNATI, Jan. 11—In addition to being arrested on a charge of having possessed liquor, Frank Sanzeri, 23, bartender, got a little lesson in chemistry last night.

Detectives say that when they entered the cafe Sanzeri poured liquor and oil into a sink, believing that the two would mix and the evidence would be destroyed.

The officers unloosed the goose neck on the sink and extracted the contents.

Much to Sanzeri's surprise, the liquor remained at the bottom of the container and the oil remained on top.

"Firecrest" Is Undergoing Thoro Conditioning in New York

BY HARRY R. FLORY.

PARIS, Jan. 11 — Not satisfied with having already crossed the Atlantic alone in his eight-ton thirty-three-foot sailing boat, the "Firecrest," Alain Gerbault, French teanis star, is laying plans to sail from New York next Spring to explore hitherto unvisited islands of the Pacific.

The "Firecrest" is being repaired and refitted in New York for her second daring voyage. Meantime Gerbault, who recently returned to France on the steamer "Paris," is pursuing his other hobby, tennis taking part in tournaments on the Riviera.

Twenty thousand French boxing fans welcomed Georges Carpentier when he returned to Paris after his disastrous encounter with Jack Dempsey at Boyle's Thirty Acres. tens of thousands of persons watched the guilloting of "Blue Beard" Landru, who murdered twelve wives, only five persons met Gerbault at the Saint Lazare Railroad station when he returned. MOST BOOZE IS IMPORTED, SEC'Y MELLON REPORTS

Asks $20,000,000 to Augment Fleet of Coast Guard Ships

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—More rum is being brot into the United States than is being made by home brewers and distillers according to a survey of the situation made at the treasury department today.

Secretary Mellon cited this in support of the treasury plan to augment the coast guard with a $20,000,000 fleet of vessels.

He told visitors he did not believe sufficient vessels could be transferred from the navy department to meet the shortage in the coast guard.

Secretary Mellon believes the prohibition enforcement forces have the domestic traffic in "hootch" home brewing and home manufacture, under fairly good control, and that smuggling now presents the only really serious problem in enforcement.

MOTHER OF SIX DIES THURSDAY

ACCOUNT FILED

An account of the inventory and appraisement of the estate of Lewis Geog, deceased, has been filed in probate court by Frank Geog, administrator. The account shows the total appraisement of assets to be $2,081.50.

NOVELIST DENIES SHE IS "LOVE THIEF."

Mrs. Gertrude P. Bassett and Adrian D. Bassett

Nina Wilcox Putnam Sanderson, noted novelist, has entered emphatic denial in New York City to the charges of Mrs. Gertrude P. Bassett, of Madison, Conn., that she stole the love of Mrs. Bassett's giant husband, Ellsworth Bassett, and that she asked Mrs. Bassett to secure a divorce so she could marry the former clam digger, who is now her business representative. Mrs. Sanderson's recent divorce in Providence, R. I., from her husband, Robert J. P. Sanderson, was immediately vacated by the court on the allegation she had not lived the required two years in the State. The Bassetts have one child, Adrian Ellsworth. Mrs. Bassett is employed in the Madison post office.

CANAL NETS TEN MILLIONS IN 1923, ENLARGEMENT IN 30 YEARS APPEARS LIKELY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—In forty years the Panama Canal will have completely paid for itself and will return to the Government a net profit of approximately $10,000,000 annually, according to figures just compiled at the War Department.

This in addition to the thousands of dollars annually saved by American shipping firms thru utilizing the canal and its inestimable value as a vital link in our system of national defense.

It is doubtful whether the most optimistic of those who fostered the project when it was first conceived ever expected it to actually pay a profit.

The tremendous expense of building the canal was justified in the minds of the engineers who drew up the first plans because they considered the project in the same category as Government work on rivers and harbors in the United States. Furthermore, they pointed out that a large portion of the huge sum could be charged off to the item of national defense.

Of course, it was expected the revenue in tolls would probably pay for the upkeep of the canal, and it was also hoped that in time the revenues would cut down to a considerable extent the original cost of construction, but even the most enthusiastic never thot this could be achieved in the short period of 40 years.

COST $378,000,000

The original cost of construction, in round figures, was $378,000,000. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, the total revenue from the canal was $17,500,000. Of this amount $7,500,000 was expended in general upkeep, leaving a net profit of $10,000,000, and furthermore the auxiliary business in the zone owned by the Government returned a profit of another $1,000,000. This auxiliary business consists of supply stores selling food, fuel, ship appurtenances and the like to vessels passing thru.

Officials declare it was first expected that considerably under 100 vessels would pass thru the locks every month. This was the case

FLOOD IS FEARED

That the heavy downpour of rain during Thursday afternoon and night will cause another rise in the rivers, probably resulting in a flood, was feared by many Friday.

Mayor Heaton received a telegram from the chief of the state weather bureau, W. H. Alexander, Columbus, Friday morning. It follows—"River rising rapidly above. Will reach flood stage and higher next few hours, possibly causing serious flood condition in lowlands. Advise all interested parties."

MAROONED TEN DAYS BY BLIZZARD, MOTORISTS EAT HORSE MEAT AND TAKE REFUGE IN HOLE IN GROUND

Mrs. C. B. Gaines, 224 Locust-st, received word Friday from California that her brother, Cleveland Looker, his wife and daughter of Mt. Vernon, had arrived safely in California after terrible experiences while driving thru to Pacific coast in an automobile.

The Lookers left the Gaines residence in this city for California the latter part of October in a new Ford touring car. The Lookers met a family by the name of Chapman, consisting of Chapman, his wife and five children, in Lamar, Kansas and the two parties toured together.

On December 9, half-way between San Marcial and Hot Springs, N. M. Chapman's auto broke down. Before it could be repaired a blizzard came upon them. The little party was unable to travel any further.

The temperature dropped suddenly and froze Mr. Chapman's hand. The ill-fated members were forced to dig a hole in the ground with a toy shovel, where they took refuge during the storm. They were 32 miles from the nearest town.

They had no fire and only a loaf of bread and a half-pound of coffee among them. Locker said they were obliged to eat mule and horse meat and a steer to keep alive. The storm lasted 10 days.

The last letter from her brother found the Looker family in California, where Mr. Looker expects to remain until spring on account of his health.

Tax Legislation to Be Placed Before House Not Later Than Feb. 11—Republicans Concede Inability to Drive Bill Thru in Present Form—Bonus Advocates Will Invoke New Rules to Obtain Prompt Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—Tax reduction experts today perfected plans to get the tax legislation before the house by February 11 in compliance with instructions to the ways and means committee by a Republican conference.

Chairman Green of the committee, announced that consideration of the Mellon rates would start early next week.

There will be hearings on the legislation, lasting probably two weeks. Many interests have petitioned to be heard, among them the automobile, jewelry and amusement industries.

All are anxious that taxes now paid by them shall be removed or lightened.

The work of tax revision will be lightened by completion tomorrow night of consideration of the simplification and reforms of the administrative features of the laws suggested by Secretary Mellon.

The committee has approved the Mellon recommendations including creation of a board of tax appeals to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

It was decided there would be much politics in such a board if its members were selected by the president and confirmed by the senate.

Republican leaders seriously doubt whether the administration

FEDERALS TO MOVE ON PACHUCA, RICH SILVER MINE CAMP

Rebels Continue Retreat at Vera Cruz, War Dept. Claims

ARMY REVIEWED

MEXICO, CITY, Jan. 11—Federal troops will be sent out at once to recapture Pachuca which was seized by the rebels Wednesday, it was officially announced by War Secretary Serrano.

Pachuca, which is 66 miles west of this city is the largest silver mining camp in the world.

It was seized by a rebel force under General Cavazos.

Official announcement is made that Serrano will have personal supervision over the movement of the federals against Vera Cruz on the southeastern front.

Advices to the war department stated that the rebels are continuously falling back in that district.

"The revolutionary forces have not yet offered battle to the federal troops advancing upon Vera Cruz," the war department announced.

The federals are led by General Eugenio Martinez.

After reviewing the federal troops on the western front at Irapuato President Obregon delivered an address praising his men and predicting success for them on the field of battle.

El Universal Grafico printed a despatch from the western front saying that President Obregon ended his speech by shouting:

"Boys, I see we have a real army. Now we will show them what we can do."

The soldiers responded with cheers.

The president is expected to review the troops on the southeastern front at an early date.

HOT IRONS IGNITE BEDDING; OUTHOUSE CONSUMED IN PANIC

Overheated irons in the bed of Mrs Lapp, Friday morning at 12.30 o'clock was the source of the first fire in Conesville in the past few years.

Mrs. Lapp and her son, Jess Lapp live together in a home in Conesville.

The hot irons which she used to warm her feet last night ignited the bed clothing in the bed. All of the bed except the springs burned. The son threw the burning bed out of the window.

The flaming remains of the bed were thrown against an out-building near the house. The out-house burned to the ground. Efforts to extinguish the blazes in the out-shed by the bucket brigade that formed proved futile.

The burning bed was thrown out of the house before any damage had been done to the room.

IS IMPROVING

Word was received in this city Friday to the effect that Mrs. Russell Raymer, 339 south Ninth-st, was slowly recovering from an operation performed at Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, Thursday morning.

She underwent an operation for the removal of her appendix. Dr. Charles S. Hamilton, Columbus, performed the operation.

ACCOUNT FILED

The first account of the estate of George McFarland, deceased, has been filed in probate court by Clifford McFarland, administrator.

75 CLASSES ENROLL IN COUNTY CONTEST FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

A total of seventy-five classes had filed their agreement card with the secretary of the county Sunday School Association by Thursday evening, 54 in the city and 21 outside. The secretary still believes that the total number of classes to enroll will be over a hundred as there are several schools that have not sent in their report.

The schools reporting and the number of classes enrolling from each follow: Coshocton Presbyterian 16 classes; Coshocton M. E. 11 classes; Coshocton M. P. 8 classes; Coshocton Church of Christ 7 classes; Coshocton Christian 4 classes; Coshocton Baptist 5 classe; Fresno United Presbyterian 1 classes; Tyndal M. E. 4 classes; Pleasant Hill Baptist 3 classes; Warner M. T. 2 classes; Spring Mountain M. E 2 classes, and Warsaw Presbyterian 1 class.

Some of these schools will probably have other classes to enroll but their enrollment had not been received Thursday morning.

The secretary urges that those classes that gave Sunday's attendance figures instead of their total enrollment correct the mistake in their first report by giving the right number under the heading original enrollment. This is found by counting the total number of different persons who have attended as members at least once in December or on January 6 and should include officers and teachers in their proper classes.

Attention is also called to the fact that in making the weekly report visitors are not to be counted in giving the attendance of any class.

CHIROPRACTORS TO FACE TRIAL SOON

At the hearing held recently before Squire Daniel P. Banning in the case of the three local chiropractors alleged to be practicing without licenses, the motion to quash the affidavit was overruled by Squire Banning. At this time, C. O. Turner, Lloyd S. Leech and T. H. Wheeler filed a demurrer to the affidavit. This was also ruled.

The defendants, Wright, A. S. Parr, Lynch, upon being arraigned not guilty. Trial before Squire [illegible] arrangements of the inspector for Medical Board here announced.

TROOPS TO REMAIN IN ILLINOIS TOWN, ADJUTANT RULES

Alleged Rough-Shod Tactics of Raiders Given As Reason

MARION, Ill., Jan. 10—Adjutant General Carlos Black expected to return to Springfield today but without ordering the return of the troops summoned here by threat of factional trouble growing out of wholesale dry raids.

He declared that troops would not be withdrawn today.

Sheriff George Galligan, whose appeal to Governor Small brot the three companies of national guardsmen to Marion, in a formal statement charged that back of the raids, in which Ku Klux Klan members state they gave full cooperation, would be found contempt for rights of citizens and actual crimes.

Sheriff Galligan caused a sensation when he issued warrants late yesterday for S. Glenn Young and ten other dry leaders.

The warrants charged assault and robbery. Young, who holds a special deputy's warrant, said the arrests were designed to stop the raids, but would not have this effect.

A federal investigation of alleged dry violations in Williamson-co was talked today, as the result of charges by both factions. It was held that only a thoro probe would clear the status of the case.

FIGURES CITED TO SHOW IMPORTANCE OF PROPOSED ROAD

At the latest meeting of the Business Men's Association held in the offices of the Home Building and Loan Company an interesting paper on "Coshocton, A National Crossroads," was read by Carl Hawthorne, proprietor of the Hawthorne hardware store, Main-st. The paper as prepared by Mr. Hawthorne, is as follows—

"The following information gathered from a recent bulletin of the State Highway Department, relative to the amount of automobile traffic on the principal improved roads of Ohio, is of interest to residents of Coshocton on account of the proposed completion, within the year, of our main east and west highway connecting Newark and Columbus with the eastern part of the State and Pittsburg.

"The report shows that the National Highway between Zanesville and Cambridge is third in the list of the busy highways of the state, being only surpassed by the main highway between Cincinnati and Dayton and between Dayton and Springfield. The traffic on the National Road is much greater than on any highway leading into Cleveland, Toledo or Columbus.

"The dense traffic over the National Road is due to the heavy tourist travel between the East and the West, that must cross eastern Ohio. The National Road is at present the only improved highway crossing the central or southern part of the state and it draws its traffic from some of the most important centers of population in the country.

"The report of the Highway Department shows the number of automobiles using this road to be about 2400 for the thirteen hours of an average summer day. This means over 180 automobiles every hour, or over three every minute, passing a given point. When it is remembered that the traffic is not evenly distributed it can easily be seen that at times the highway is dangerously over-crowded.

"The completion of the highway thru Coshocton will divert a considerable portion of the thru traffic from this portion of the National road. The route will connect the same centers of population and will be much more favorable in regard to grades and curvature. From Columbus to Cadiz the only climb will be our Hardscrabble hill and when this is compared to the almost continuous ups and downs of the National Road, it is easy to realize the advantages of the Coshocton highway.

"The new route will not only be a great convenience to every auto user of Coshocton, but will add to the prosperity of every line of business. The early completion of this highway should be a matter of interest to every member of the community."

Mr. Hawthorne said Thursday, "If the average life of a car is 30,000 miles, and the average life of a tire is 6,000 miles, it can be seen that two cars and 40 tires are worn out every day on this 25-mile stretch of highway."

BASSETT DIVORCED

In the case of William Bassett vs. Nellie Bassett, the defendant was recently granted a divorce from the plaintiff in porbate court The plaintiff failed to appear, and the court finds that he has been guilty of gross neglect of duty, and extreme cruelty.

The defendant is awarded the custody, care and control of the minor child of the parties, and the plaintiff is ordered to pay the defendant the sum of $30 each month for the support of the child.

Mothers know a dose of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Will keep them fit

'First Aid' For Sick Children

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. Everett E. Hunt of Belzoni, Okla., who has three children and never any sickness, and Mrs. F. B. Kuklenski of Prosser, Wash., always give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleaning out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and by "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are physics that never should be given to children - calomel, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phenolphthalein, a coal-tar drug that causes skin trouble; salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then headache, biliousness, drowsiness, lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together, so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Syrup Pepsin.

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

By GEORGE R HOLMES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—You may have thought, from hearing the fervid orations that usually feature the Fourth of July, that the Constitution of the United States is a fairly solid and comprehensive document, leaving little to be desired.

But the Congress that represents you does NOT agree. Its members may profess to think so during the first week of every July, but in the other fifty-one weeks of the year many of them are continually bent on devising methods of changing it.

In the brief space the Sixty-eighth Congress has been in session more than half a hundred amendments to the Constitution have been chucked into the legislative hoppers of the Senate and House. If all were enacted they would change your method of paying taxes, getting married, getting divorced, becoming a citizen, electing a President, and what not. Even your diet might be affected, for there are several amendments that would allow the return of high-voltage beer.

However, it is not likely that many of them—if any—will be adopted, at least during the life of this Congress. Tinkering with the Constitution is tedious business. Many changes are proposed and few accepted. In more than half a century there have been but five amendments to the Constitution—an average of about one every decade.

The Fifteenth Amendment, guaranteeing equal rights between whites and negroes, was adopted in 1871, and then for forty odd years there was no more tinkering with the Constitution.

The adoption in 1913 of the Sixteenth, giving Congress the power to levy taxes on incomes, apparently started constitutional minds to work again, with the result that in the same year the Seventeenth Amendment, providing direct election of the United States Senators, was adopted. Then the famous Eighteenth and the equally famous Nineteenth abolishing liquor and giving women the right to vote, followed in 1920. That's all there have been since 1871.

Of the new batch of amendments that have been proposed in the Sixty-eighth Congress there is one that bids likely to become the Twentieth, although whether it will be possible of accomplishment this session is doubtful because of the crush of other business and the proximity of the 1924 campaign. This is the amendment to abolish child labor.

No less than ten members of the House and three members of the Senate have written amendments on this subject and introduced them within the three short weeks Congress has been at work. There is but little doubt that ultimately one of them will be adopted, for Congress has shown its temper on this question by passing laws prohibiting child labor. The Supreme Court has invariably held them unconstitutional.

Those sponsoring child labor amendments in this session are: Senators Lodge (R.), of Massachusetts; Wheeler (D.), of Montana, and Shortridge (R.), of California; Representatives Cooper (R.), of Wisconsin; Johnson (R.), of Washington; Thompson (R.), of Ohio; Rodgers (R.), of Massachusetts; Foster (R.), of Ohio; Moore (R.), of Ohio; Hayden (R.), of Arizona; Tague (D.), of Massachusetts, Greene (R.), of Massachusets, and Lozier (D.), of Missouri.

Another amendment that seems certain of passage as soon as Congress can get around to it is that which would prohibit the States, counties and municipalities of the country from issuing tax-exempt securities. The practice of issuing tax-exempt securities is described by officials of the Treasury Department as one of the most serious problems faced by the Government in its quest for sufficient revenues to keep business going.

Just how much money is buried away in securities of this kind is not known, but it runs into billions, according to Treasury officials. It is hidden wealth which produces nothing and benefits none except the owner.

There are two amendments in the House now to abolish this practice, sponsored by Representative Dickinson (R.), of Missouri, and Representative Foster (R.), of Ohio. One of them may slip through the present session.

Another amendment proposed that holds considerable public interest and threatens an acrimonious controversy is that sponsored by the National Women's Party, which would grant women equal rights with men in everything throughout the nation. This is designed to wipe out State laws in some places that are considered detrimental to women's interests in matters of inheritance, marriage and divorce, etc. It was introduced by Senator Curtis (R.), of Kansas.

The other amendments proposed cover many subjects. Here are some of the most important and what they propose:

Direct election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and abolition of the Electoral College.

Legalizing 5 per cent beer.

Ratification of treaties with foreign nations by a majority vote of the Senate instead of two-thirds as at present.

A referendum on prohibition in each State.

Changing the terms of President, Vice-President and members of Congress so they would expire on the third Monday in January instead of on March 4 as at present.

A national referendum before Congress can declare war, except when actual invasion by an enemy is imminent.

Enfranchisement of the residents of the District of Columbia, who at present are taxed but have no right to vote.

Giving Congress the power to establish uniform marriage and divorce laws for the nation, wiping out the present conflicting codes of various States.

Conscription of property as well as of men in time of war.

Barring from citizenship children of aliens who are born in this country of parents who are not eligible to citizenship (aimed at Oriental races).

Three-fourths of the States of the Union must ratify any of these amendments before they become part of the organic law of the nation—a long and tedious road.

CLEVELAND RAIDS FIRST DAY BRING ARRESTS OF 140

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11.—Slot machines have been put out of business in Cleveland, reports at police headquarters today indicated.

With precinct stations piled high with confiscated machines, and 140 persons awaiting trial for permitting gambling, police from Chief Jacob S. Graul down to the newest patrolman were ready for the second act in the big drama of "Cleaning up Cleveland" which is to be staged today, with the raiding of the big downtown places where thousands of dollars changed hands every day in the betting upon horses.

Gamblers—men who have reaped fortunes from those who speculate upon the turn of a card or the speed of a horse—were still skeptical today as to the good faith of the administration.

The conductor of Cleveland's "Monte Carlo" closed down his black jack and crap games yesterday, but passed the word to regular customers, "everything will be all right by Saturday," but the public generally was inclined to believe that the orders would be carried out in good faith.

Director of Public Safety Barry, in his latest orders has put the issue squarely up to Chief Graul and the men under him, telling them that for the first time in many years the police had a free hand and to go out and "get the gamblers."

American Industry Flourishes Through the Application of Electrical Energy

CITIES SERVICE COMPANY'S electric power subsidiaries sold more than 850,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy in 1922 alone, and sales are rapidly approaching an ANNUAL rate of 1,000,000,000 kilowatt hours.

In Ohio there are two important operating subsidiary companies of CITIES SERVICE COMPANY. One is the Toledo Edison Company, in Toledo, which serves the territory in and around that city with light, heat and power, as well as transportation. The other is the Ohio Public Service Company, which distributes electrical energy over one of the most progressive and rapidly growing industrial districts in the United States.

The Ohio Public Service Company is responsible in part for this amazing growth through its seven divisions located at Elyria, Lorain, Mansfield, Warren, Massilon, Alliance and Ashland.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT.

"Naughty" days of Miss Frankie Naughty, 22, Akron, will be over for 10 days.

Police Judge A. F. O'Neil sentenced her to the workhouse when Miss Naughty, a girl dressed as a man, was arraigned before him. A fine of $25 and costs, was added.

Officers who arrested Miss Naughty thought they were nabbing a man. She wore khaki knickers, a silk shirt and fancy cap, but—her voice betrayed her male disguise.

COLUMBUS—The annual race for the city high school basketball title will get under way Saturday with six of the seven local high squads in action in the afternoon at the Coliseum at the Ohio state fair grounds. West will oppose Trade high; East will mix with North; and South and Commerce high will battle. West, East and Commerce are favored to win.

MASSILLON—With three lettermen back from last year's squad, the local high school five opens the court season here tonight with Barberton high. The team is regarded as having an edge on former Massillon high teams, being light and fast, with a good passing attack, but is unable to score consistently, which will nullify the best attack in the world. Barberton emerged victor from the game last year by a close score.

AKRON — Central high school, which has managed to maintain basketball supremacy among the high schools of the city regularly, has a hard row to hoe this season. Coach "Red" Blair, formerly of Ohio State, has been forced to build an entirely new team, since the veteran quintet of last year, composed of Kirkman, Fontaine, Hunschle, Barker and Rioux, is lost through graduation.

MARTINS FERRY — The large new Follansbee high school gymnasium was dedicated with a victory when the clash between the girls' teams of the local high school and Triadelphia was staged preceeding the boys' game. The girls won by 17 to 11, but the boys were trounced to the tune of 21 to 8. The Martins Ferry boys meet Adena high here Jan. 11.

YOUNGSTOWN — Both South and Rayen high schools of this city opened the season with victorys. South running away from Girard high, 32-12, and Rayen nosing out Akron South by a count of 33-30. South found Girard's stiff team easy, and Coach Ashbaugh took advantage of the oportunity to test out his subs. The Rayen-Akron South game was a battle from start to finish.

CHILLICOTHE—While other industry here lies idle part of the time, the Mead Pulp and Paper Co. will start operating Sundays, commencing next, to fill excess orders. The concern plans enlargement of the plant here in the Spring, when it will install a new 146-inch calendar, one of the largest used in the paper-making industry. This will make 12 in the company's battery, and one of these machines will handle about 60,000 pounds of paper daily, officials report. A new paper finishing room and a modern cafeteria restaurant for employes are among the planned additions to the paper mill.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—Sheriff S. M. Dunfee, Belmont county, is "getting all set" for the summer automobile speeders. He is organizing a patrol system for the National Highway.

OCO—Belmont county officials are investigating the bombing of the residence of Louis Venturato, brother of Domhick Venturato, who is serving a life term in the Ohio Penitentiary for the murder of John I. Major in a mine strike riot in 1922. Louis Venturato received a warning to leave Oco, he told authorities.

ALIKANNA—Harvey Haining, 24, is in a Steubenville hospital from bullet wounds in his legs, inflicted accidentally by his brother while they were rabbit hunting. Both fired at the same time. The rabbit escaped injury. Harvey didn't.

MEDINA — Neighbors cut the winter's supply of wood for Max Koehler, who underwent operation for removal of gall stones and his appendix.

COLUMBUS — Accident report ing service is to be established by the state highway department to provide greater safety for the traveling public, it has been announced. Division employees, garages, filling stations and others interested will be furnished blank forms for use in reporting bad road conditions likely to cause accidents. The maintainance of detours will also be given more attention during the approaching season, it was stated. Watchmen will be provided to safeguard workmen, and one side of roads being repaired will be kept open for travel, if possible. If detours are necessary, the roads chosen will be kept in good repair for the traffic.

NELSONVILLE — Vocational schools, designed to help Hocking valley coal miners to improve their condition, will be started by school and Ohio University instructors shortly. The schools will be operated under the Smith-Hughes Act of the state legislature.

CHILLICOTHE—John P. Phillips, attorney, and for 33 years superintendent of the Trinity M. E. Sunday school, has given his fifth annual banquet to the 923 "Every Sunday Scholars." The banquet is given by the superintendent to those who are present every Sunday throughout the year. There were 33 present at this year's feed.

POMEROY — Sadie Lemley, in suing Stephen Carl for a $240 judgement, claims the amount is due her for board and washing. She charges that Carl failed to pay her for this work during an entire year.

ST. CLAIRESVILLE — Idleness in eastern Ohio coal mines is resulting in an exceptionally large number of applications for citizenship papers being filed in the office of the Belmont county clerk of courts. During the last three months of 1923, the office issued 155 second and 222 first papers. The unequalled rush is accounted for by the lack of steady work in coal mines after a period of regular activities.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A WOMAN'S WAY

"I tried for four months to get my wife to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I know had helped a friend of mine who also suffered from stomach trouble. She insisted her case was different. I finally had to bribe her with a new dress. The first dose produced remarkable results, clearing up her complexion and restoring her appetite. She can now eat things she hadn't been able to for many years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

WHEN BACK HURTS FLUSH OUT KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood in 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

MEDICOS SEE PERIL IN PIPESTEM FORMS

Swathing Body in Bindings More Dangerous Than Tight Lacing Was

LONDON, Jan. 10—Famous doctors and nerve specialists have begun a protest against the practices adopted by many young women and girls in order to reduce and bring their figures into line with the "pipestem" figure now fashionable, which demands the complete obliteration of curves and a straight unbroken line from neck to knee.

Many girls swathe their bodies to a rigid tightness only likened to mummy wrappings, while some even bandage their bodies in strips of sticking plaster tightly wound, alleged the doctors.

"This is a thousand times worse than the old tight-lacing," say the medicos. "Breathing becomes difficult under such intense pressure, and the lungs are cramped. In the tight-lacing days only a part of the body was cramped, but now these women and girls place abnormal pressure on the stomach and chest organs.

"The straight silhouette is full of peril for future generations."

LIST OF TONIGHT'S PRAYER MEETINGS IN HOMES OF CITY

The second series of prayer meetings to be held in homes of members of the churches entering into the arrangement for simultaneous gospel services will be conducted this evening at 7:30. Previous cottage meetings have been well attended and it is expected that the attendance this evening will surpass that of previous evenings.

The interest in these meetings has been decidedly helpful, which no doubt prove to be an index to the profit that will be derived from the services during the period from January 13-27, when seven churches of the city will stress the vital worth of the gospel of Jesus Christ, according to the Rev. William M. Hart, pastor of the local Baptist church.

Meetings for this evening are scheduled to be held in the following homes:

FOREIGN SHIPPERS TO CEASE RATE CUTTING BENSON'S PREDICTION

WASHINGTON, Jan 11. — Foreign ships companies are losing money in their fight against the United States Shipping Board ships and they are expected soon to agree to cease rate cutting, Admiral William S. Benson of the shipping board today told the house merchant marine committee.

Admiral Benson asked the committee for legislation authorizing the board to use its funds to convert about 50 shipping board ships into oil burners with various types of improved engines, including the Diesel engine and authority to loan money to private shipbuilders to enable them to make the conversions desired.

SMUGGLING

rebels considerably complicating their work, already made heavy thru operations against rum runners, narcotics and aliens.

With legal entrance of aliens practically cut off until June 30 the border "coils"—a smugglers' term for a criminal class which preys on foreigners anxious to enter this country—are becoming more active in piloting an undesirable class over the Mexican border, according to official reports.

Evidence gathered by the government disclosed that the probability of securing large financial reward for smuggling aliens has attracted a new type of European criminal to the border country.

The government has information that there is in existence a far reaching organization which takes an alien at his home, guarantees him passage entrance to Mexico and safe delivery at the American international line for a fixed price.

The customs officials said that the coming of this type of criminal to Mexico to enter the smuggling business, is a matter of real concern and that the country should be protected by increase of the border patrols

Immigration laws of Mexico make it possible for anarchists or other criminals to enter that country without difficulty. There is said to be some smuggling over the Canadian border altho immigration laws of that country make entry of undesirable classes almost impossible. Some trouble with illegal entry of orientals over the southern California border and coast also has been reported to the customs officials.

SYMPATHY IS URGED FOR DOPE ADDICTS

Not Punishment, But Help Required to Aid Them, Says Chicago M. D.

CHICAGO, Jan 11.—Instead of punishment being meted out to persons addicted to drugs, wholehearted sympathy and extensive co-operation should be extended to these unfortunates, according to Dr Herman N Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner

In a signed bulletin issued recently, Dr Bundesen also pointed out that each year finds the ranks of cold narcotic addicts increasing steadily This is a problem, he said, which demands the highest skill of the medical profession before it will be solved satisfactorily and its menacing aspects gradually eliminated

"Opium, cocaine, morphine and other habit - forming drugs have reached out and clutched thousands of boys and girls within their tentacles," Dr Bundesen asserted "Where in other years only adults were victims today the influence of drugs is found in many grammar and high schools Children, 12 years of age, and others in their 'teens have been found to be addicts

"Nowadays the use of drugs is not confined exclusively to the underworld Prominent personages, even those who move in the highest strata of society, now 'hit the dope' Of course, the degradation of their afflictions—and dope victims include many professional men and also highly educated, accomplished women — ultimately swells the ranks of the underworld."

CONSIDERATION

will be as successful in driving thru congress the Mellon plan of tax revision as it was in having the soldier bonus bill sidetracked for immediate action on the tax legislation. Altho President Coolidge has announced his opposition to compromise legislation and his support of the Mellon bill, it is generally conceded the Mellon rates will have to be compromised especially in respect to income surtaxes, to command the votes of the necessary majority of the house

Bonus advocates, defeated in their attempt to pass the bonus before the tax legislation insisted today they will get their bill before the house

Liberalized rules will be adopted by the house next week, a report on rules revision being expected from the house rules committee next Monday.

One of these rules will provide for calling a bill from committee in event it is held in committee an unreasonable length of time

On petition of a given number of members, the house leaders will be forced to put a motion before the house to discharge a committee from further consideration of a bill and if this carries the legislation automatically is placed on the house calendar and can be called up for a vote.

This rule will be invoked by the soldier bonus men if found necessary

DAVID MEETS A DEAR LITTLE LUMBERMAN.

MY! How David did grow! when his mama asked him to go out and chop up some fallen trees in the woodland for wood. He chopped and chopped and fussed and fumed until a tiny laugh behind him rather startled him, and turning around, David saw a dear little furry creature laughing at him.

"Dear me, but you're a big lad to be fussing around that way," said a voice, and the furry creature scratched his head and looked from David's feet to his head. "What do you think of me? As small as I am I cut down trees and build houses and——"

"Well, bless me," laughed David, "if you aren't a beaver! I've seen pictures of beavers. That's how I knew you. How can one so small cut down trees and build houses, I'd like to know?"

"I must say it's not an easy matter," replied Billy Beaver. "But you never hear me growling about it.

"Bless Me!" Laughed David.

small as I am. Just watch me." He picked out a small tree, and sitting up on his hind feet braced himself with his broad, flat tail and began biting off the bark with his great big front teeth. He worked quite a circle around the tree trunk.

When he heard the tree begin to crack Billy Beaver slapped his tail on the ground and calling David, ran from under the tree.

Down came the tree to the ground with a crash. "How's that!" exclaimed Billy Beaver proudly.

"Can I help you drag it to your house?" asked David, all eyes, eager to help.

"No, indeed, thank you." And getting behind the tree trunk Billy Beaver began to push the tree toward the stream. When he reached the bank Billy Beaver gave the tree one great push and it rolled into the water with him after it.

"It's mighty nice to have this little stream so handy," laughed David.

"Handy!" chuckled Billy Beaver. "I'll say it is. I built this canal here myself. I'm not good at pushing things on land, but I surely can push them through the water.

"Hop on the log and I'll show you my house. It's finished. The fact is, I built it last year and am just remodelling it this season."

By this time they had reached the dam.

"I made this dam, too," explained Billy Beaver, "and here you, as big as you are, fuss because you have to cut a few sticks," he added. "I filled this dam with sticks and mud. After I got the water the right depth to live in safely, I made a big platform of more sticks and mud over yonder, where you see that roof-like pile."

"But why do you build in such deep places?" David asked as he glanced down into the deep water.

"To make sure the water won't freeze around me in cold weather and hold me a prisoner," replied Billy Beaver. "Oh, you can't fool me."

He led David over to his little house and let him peek in. "Now, inside, I have two openings in the floor with long hallways running down through the foundations, opening at the very bottom of the pond. These are regular waterways, but I'm quite sure that Coyote and Brown Bear, both terrible enemies of mine, can never catch me once I'm inside my house.

"Now I'll go and help you cut the wood for your mama," and he pushed the floating log, with David on it, back to shore. Working together, they soon had a pile of wood which so astonished David's mama that she gave him a quarter. David bought some lovely apples and shared them with Billy Beaver.

WORDS of WISE MEN

The present hour is always the solemn hour—the past has ceased to exist, the future is out of reach.

They never fail who die in a great cause.

Philosophers dwell in the moon.

The most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness.

Men like women to reflect them, but the woman who can only reflect a man and is nothing in herself, will never be of much service to him.

To the pure mind alone has solitude its charms.

Song shall be heard as long as fields are green and skies are blue and woman's face is fair.

Every man who rises in any profession must tread a path more or less bedewed by the tears of those he passes on his way.

We should go through life as the traveler goes through the Swiss mountains. A hasty word may bring down an avalanche—a misstep may plunge us over a precipice.

Dicky and Lillian Clashed Over the Telephone.

I NEVER have put in a more hectic afternoon than the one following Harriet's departure for the city, her first stage of the journey to the scene of the accident which had killed her sister and mortally injured her brother-in-law. While Mother Graham lay quiet, exhausted but tensely watchful, Lillian and I put in call after call on the telephone trying to locate Dicky and Edwin that we might transmit her wishes to them. And when, after we had tried every ingenious expedient that either of us could devise, we finally located Dicky, he talked so decidedly at his mother's command, that I turned to Lillian with a hopeless gesture of defeat.

"Are you all crazy?" he demanded vehemently over the telephone. "Have you lost all sense of decency and respect for the dying? What sort of figure would I cut, rushing into a hospital and saying to a dying man, 'Here! sign this on the dotted line before you breathe your last'? Why, they'd throw me out of the window, and serve me right."

"What does he say?" Lillian whispered, and I repeated his words rapidly and in a low murmur.

"What are you mumbling?" Dicky's voice sounded sharply in my ear. "I can't understand a word you say. Come closer to the telephone."

"May I?" Lillian queried softly, her eyes on mine. "There isn't much time, you know."

Lillian at the Telephone.

"Of course," I whispered readily, handing her the receiver. I knew as well as she did that there was no one in the world who could reduce my temperamental husband to reasonableness as soon as she could, but the knowledge always gave me a tiny unreasoning pang. It was no feeling of jealousy—Lillian's own sane thoughtfulness had blotted that from my heart years ago. It was rather the resentment a wife might feel toward an older sister or mother of her husband, whom she is compelled to ask for aid in securing his assent to some imperative measure.

It was lucky, I told myself grimly, that my own affection for Lillian was so firmly rooted. For I can conceive nothing more aggravating to a wife than to have a suggestion flouted when proposed by her, and then acceded to meekly when some other woman insists upon it. Yet I know that many wives undergo the humiliating experience, and I cannot imagine that it is much mitigation for them to realize that the chief reason for the husband's capitulation is the fact that he does not feel privileged to treat any other woman as cavalierly as he does his wife.

Lillian's tone was as creamily soft as the velvet so beloved by young writers when hunting for similes for a contralto voice, but I was sure that Dicky recognized as well as I did the firmness beneath it.

Dicky Expostulates.

"I am as close to the mouthpiece as it is possible to get, Dicky-bird," Lillian cooed, "for it is most necessary that you hear every word. Now, as to the matter of throwing you out of the hospital, has it occurred to you that Dr. Braithwaite will be with you? Do you imagine that there is a hospital in the United States where that man's actions would be questioned?"

I knew from her face that Dicky was expostulating volubly over the telephone, and her next words had the tinkle of ice in them.

"Wait just a minute! This isn't anything for your decision or mine. I won't be responsible for your mother's life if I have to tell her that you are not doing as she has asked. She says that without the safeguard of a will signed by Mr. Harrison, leaving his money to the children and the guardianship of the children to one of his wife's family, they will be turned over to the father's family — evidently something Mr. Harrison himself dreads above all things——"

That Dicky had interrupted again I knew by the impatient tattoo of her fingers against the telephone.

"Yes, I know, except in the gravest emergency, it would be an awful thing to do, but this is for the dying man's own peace of mind. Look here! All you have to do is to have the will drawn up and take it with you. Then let Dr. Braithwaite decide the rest. But I must have your word of honor to do that so that I can put your mother's mind at rest."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a woman 30 years of age. I was married last June to one of the respectable men of the city where I live. We live in a house, all our own and are very comfortably settled.

I like to dance and play cards like I did before I was married, but my husband does not believe in doing this.

I do not agree with him. I see no harm in dancing. Should I give up all my pleasures for him?

WAITING.

WAITING: Isn't your husband's love and peace of mind more important to you than outside interests, my dear? You should certainly be able to find contentment in your own home. If you are wise you will try to please him in every way.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I met a young man about a year ago. I have gone with him for about two months, and he gave me an expensive Christmas present. Should I have given him one?

He says he dearly loves me. He lives in another state and writes to me. Should I answer his letters?

UNDECIDED.

UNDECIDED: It was not necessary for you to give the young man a Christmas present, but it is only polite to answer his letters.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of seventeen and am considered good-looking by all of my friends. I am in love with a young man four years my senior. He tells me he loves me and has asked me to marry him. Sometimes, I believe him, but at other times he appears indifferent. Do you think he loves me?

CUDDLES.

CUDDLES: The young man would not have asked you to marry him if he does not love you, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am thirty years of age and I am deeply in love with a young woman of my age. This young woman in question is married, but has not been living with her husband for years. As I am certain that I love her I asked her to get a divorce and let me marry her. I assured her that I am in a position to provide a comfortable home for her and make life pleasant for her.

Yet she says she doesn't feel as if she could love truly the second time. She goes out with me and is always willing to, and always glad to have me call, yet she gives me no more consideration than a [illegible]. As I have tried in every possible manner to win this girl's affection, and can't, will you now please advise me whether to give up trying?

W. A.

W. A.: Never give up trying, my friend, but do not give all of your time to this one girl. As long as you are in love with her you will not be interested deeply in others, but it would be well for you to find diversion in their society.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

ANOTHER SHADOW CAST BEFORE THE INCREASED ORIENTAL INFLUENCE.

JOSEPHINE—I'm glad you like this shawl, Aunt Ellen. I think it will be very effective at the fancy dress ball. It's gay, of course, but I shall not stop at wearing it at the ball. It's so pretty that I mean to wear it many times. The Chinese influence is only part of that Oriental revival in fashions which is setting in. When it arrives I'll be right down to the dock to meet it — wearing my Chinese shawl.

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

The Feminine Jealousy That Lost an Empress Her Throne.

THE gentle art of breaking wills is by no means a modern development of social unrest—in itself far from new.

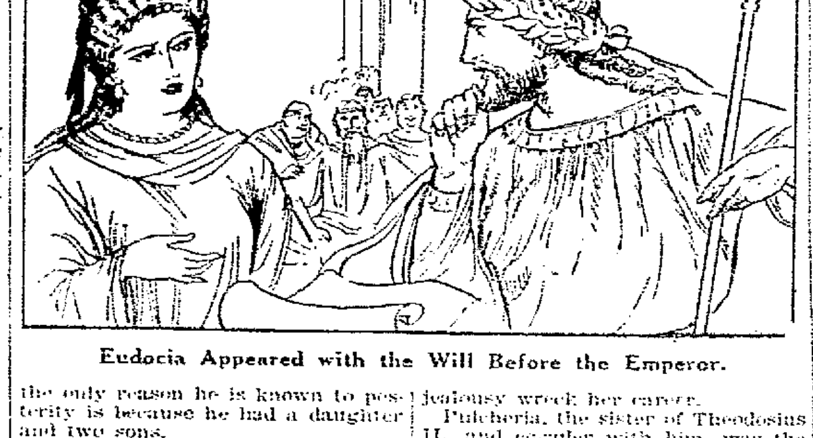

The basic character of dozens of the best sellers—the father who cut off one of his children with a pleasant word, thereby paving the way to a contest in the probate court—is no longer novel.

He is as old as the glory of Athens—and that, as all who read will agree, is very old indeed!

His name was something or other that doesn't specially matter, since own argument, for Eudocia found herself non-existent financially after his death. So she promptly rushed into court with a suit to break the will.

And right then the old man's judgment was justified. Theodosius II., the Emperor of Byzantium, before whom the suit was being tried, was so stricken with the charm of the plaintiff that he immediately married her, and she became empress of one of the richest and most gorgeous kingdoms of the East.

Eudocia might have been one of the most illustrious women rulers of all time had she not let feminine the only reason he is known to posterity is because he had a daughter and two sons.

The daughter, Eudocia, was the one who inherited a pleasant word in the old gentleman's will. All of his material possessions he passed along to his sons.

Being a member of the coterie of philosophers of old Athens, Eudocia's father argued with what he considered irrefutable logic. His daughter, he explained, was possessed of such beauty and learning that any man in the world would consider those qualities sufficient in themselves as a marriage dot. Why, then, should he take from her brothers, who had nothing of their sister's mental attainments, what material things might help them to success of their own?

Apparently he failed to answer his jealousy wreck her career.

Pulcheria, the sister of Theodosius II., and co-ruler with him, was the champion of her sister-in-law in the beginning. In fact, it was largely due to her kindly assistance that the love affair of the Emperor and the litigant-at-law was carried on to marriage.

But not long after the marriage Eudocia became so ambitious as to organize a plot to overthrow Pulcheria.

The outcome of the plot was a hasty flight to Jerusalem for Eudocia. She shut herself up in the alien city intending to spend the balance of her life in solitude and religious devotion.

But the vengeance of Pulcheria and the wrath of Theodosius pursued her relentlessly. She died, sorrowful and defeated, in 460.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Making the Winter Guest Room Cozy.

THE Winter guest room in a country house, unless heating arrangements are perfect, is apt to be a cold proposition that needs more than a warm welcome to make it habitable. A good way to find out what the room lacks is to occupy it yourself for a night or two. Then its needs will become plain to you.

In the first place, is the bed comfortable? Are the pillows soft and plentiful, blankets of the right weight, sheets long enough not to pull out at the bottom? Are there extra covers near at hand for those who like them?

How are the lighting fixtures? Are they easy to reach and effective when lighted? Are there a reading light by the bed and an electric light or candle for emergency use?

Is there a tray on a table with a water pitcher and glass or a small vacuum bottle for a hot drink with a cup and saucer? Many people drink hot water on retiring.

See to it that there are hangers in the closet, that all the doors work well without sticking, and that locks and keys are in working order. Also, make sure the windows fit tightly and lock, as many people are timid at first in a strange room. In the hall, a dim light should burn all night over the bathroom door. A small card tacked on the inside of the guest-room door should tell of meal hours, the arrival and departure of mails and any other information of value.

In the desk should be paper and so on, telegraph blanks, timetables, a small dictionary and other similar little necessities.

On the dressing table should be pins, talcum powder and a few other little comforts, including a small mending outfit. On the washstand should be towels, wash cloths, a piece of wrapped soap and a new toothbrush in sealed paper in case of emergency. Brushbroom, hat brush and shoe cloths should be at hand in case the guest has not brought them.

Now we come to the heating problem. If steam, hot water or furnace heat does not reach the room in sufficient quantity it is wise to have a permanent gas or electric heater installed, and a card attached to it with full instructions as to lighting and extinguishing the flame, also, an invitation to use it whenever it is needed. Sometimes a guest hesitates to use these comforts if not urged to do so. There is nothing quite as miserable as to be cold in an unfamiliar room, separated too often from a blanket wrapper that was too bulky to pack.

Some thoughtful hostesses send up to the night-table a small cracker jar and fruit bowl in case a guest may like a bite to eat before turning in or an apple or orange to start the day with. Again, on the washstand or shelf above, there should be placed a few little labeled bottles containing ammonia, alcohol, witch-hazel, while bicarbonate of soda, borax, soap powder, almond meal, cold cream and so on may fill little jars.

ODD and INTERESTING FACTS from EVERYWHERE

There is a difference of opinion as to whether Runnymede, England, or Magna Charta Island, just off the shore, was the scene of the signing of the great document. A generally accepted version of the historic incident states that the army of barons encamped at Runnymede, that King John's army remained on the opposite bank of the Thames, and that the meetings between the monarch and the leading barons took place on the little island. A cottage there contains a stone slab on which it is asserted that the document was signed.

It will be useless to look on the map for Runnymede; it is only an inconspicuous meadow as the name discloses, being located about five miles downstream from Windsor. Though the original "Articles of the Barons" (Magna Charta) were signed June 15, 1215, the day on which they were presented the provisions were not put in the form of a charter and executed by John until four days later. Four more days were taken up with the making of provisions for carrying out the charter. The document is pretty well accepted as one of the most famous in English history. Some authorities go so far as to see in it the creator of English law today.

The buccaneers were French and English freebooters of the seventeenth century who had headquarters on the island of Tortuga del Mar, off the Coast of San Domingo in the Bahama Channel, which was the main line of Caribbean commerce. By Papal decree the Spanish claimed the whole Western World as private possession, and other countries were driven to questionable methods in order to gain a foothold. The French and English pirates raided the Spanish plantations on San Domingo, and sold meat to vessels stopping for provisions. This meat was dried or cured in smokehouses, called "boucans," hence the name buccaneers. Later these buccaneers took to the sea themselves and began to capture vessels. In France the buccaneers were called "filibustiers," the Spaniards called them "demons of the sea," and among themselves they were known as the "brethren of the coast." The buccaneers did much to break up the Spanish sea power in the New World.

YOUR HEALTH

What to Do If Afflicted with Acne and Blackheads

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

EVERY youngster seems doomed to go through an embarrassing and humiliating pimply period. I always feel sorry for the afflicted boys and girls, but it is one of the signs of approaching maturity. In spite of all we do, few escape the experience.

We call this disease "acne," but, since the face looks as if sprinkled with pepper, the more popular name is "blackheads."

Red, swollen spots, sometimes capped with pus, and accompanied by blackheads—these are the characteristic signs of acne. The hard lumps may not come to a head, but may look red and angry for days and weeks.

The face, particularly the chin and forehead, the upper part of the chest and the shoulders, are the parts usually affected. It is rare to have the disease come on later in life. More commonly it begins at the age of ten or twelve and continues more or less intermittently for several years. It is rare indeed to see it after the age of twenty-five.

Some skins are more liable to attack than others. Perhaps you have not noticed it, but there are many kinds of skins. Some are fine-grained and small-pored—Others are coarse-grained, with large, open pores and very oily. The latter is liable to acne.

It is an interesting fact that the persons who have acne are likely to have lots of dandruff. There is a remarkable relationship between these two disagreeable conditions.

It is difficult to trace the causes of acne. Diseased tonsils, a running ear, any intestinal disturbance—all these are open to suspicion as being factors. There can be no doubt that bodily poisoning from any cause must not be disregarded.

I suppose it may be said truthfully that most children are too much indulged. They eat sweets, starches and fats to excess. We love our children so much we can deny them nothing. Ought we not to love them enough to keep from them the things which may be harmful?

We cannot hope to cure acne until we cause our young patients to live the right sort of lives. This means lots of exercise in the out-of-doors. Activity of the body guarantees activity to the skin and a healthier skin.

For the sake of the skin, as well as for the good of all the rest of the body, young people should be given simple food, green vegetables, fruit, milk and coarse bread. Lots of water to drink and above all else, deep breathing are essential to health and a clean skin.

The skin must be kept clean. Correct the diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food.

Almost always constipation or at least sluggish bowel movements are present. Avoid use of salts or cathartics. Take a tablespoonful of mineral oil every night, three hours or more after eating. Eat bran muffins and drink plenty of water as further aids to relief from constipation.

Frequent, general baths and rubbing down with a coarse towel are essential.

Exercise daily to the extent of causing gentle perspiration.

Get lots of fresh air day and night.

Be sure the teeth, tonsils and nasal sinuses are all right.

Bathe the affected parts with water, hot as can be borne. Then squeeze out the backheads with a sterilized hair pin or watch key. Do not use great force, and do not remove too many at one time. Open any pus-filled pimples, using a sterilized needle for the purpose.

Apply some healing lotion. The following may be used twice a day: Milk of sulphur, water and alcohol in equal parts, to which may be added one-tenth part of gum mucilage.

If there is much irritation, benzoated oxide of zinc ointment may be applied.

Answers to Health Questions.

S. L. R. Q.—What is the cause of cold hands and feet most of the time?

2.—What is a good nerve tonic?

A.—Poor circulation is the cause of the hands and feet being cold.

2.—I would suggest cod liver oil as a good nerve tonic.

BETTY. Q.—My eyes feel as if there was sand under the lids, and there is a gathering in the corner of the eyes during the day. They bother me most when I read. Will you advise me what to do for this?

A.—I would suggest that you have your eyes examined for eyestrain or infection.

* * *

F. R. N. Q.—Is it possible to correct a long pointed nose?

A.—I would advise you to consult a plastic surgeon.

ADMIRER. Q.—How can I make the lines of my mouth less noticeable?

2.—Is steaming the face each day, in an effort to correct dry skin, harmful?

A.—Gentle massage with a good cold cream will tend to make the lines less noticeable.

2.—My advice would be to apply a good cold cream to your face each night and allow it to remain until morning and only steam your face about once or twice a week and not every day.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Frock for a Little Girl.

IN my various walks about New York I see so many lovely children so beautifully dressed that I'm sometimes inspired to turn into a maker of clothes for little ones.

Pam and I took a walk in the Park yesterday.

"Let's go to the Zoo," Pam suggested.

We wandered in that direction and as we drew nearer found ourselves surrounded by flocks of children.

Some of these were ragged little urchins who seemed to have grown up like Topsy, and others were carefully reared youngsters who were immaculately dressed and carefully tended by nurse-maids.

"They all seem to enjoy the same things, and I must say the ragged ones seem as happy as the well-dressed little ones," I remarked.

"It's such fun to dress children that I should think the mothers of even the poorest ones would manage to concoct cunning little dresses," Pam said.

"But you forget that many of their mothers have to work," I reminded her. "And besides, a lot of them are not as clever at sewing as you are."

"Of course you are right," Pam agreed instantly. "I wish I could make dresses for poor children, then."

"It would be a good work," I commented. "And the clothes are so easy to do, and the children are so perfectly adorable in cunning little dresses."

"Now look at this one," Pam called my attention to a pretty little girl. We were inside looking at the tigers now, and the nurse-maid had taken off the child's coat, revealing one of the simplest and most effective little frocks I've seen in a long while.

"What could be simpler than that?" I asked.

"Nothing," Pam assured me.

"Just blue serge, trimmed with a different blue material edged in lighter blue," I said.

"What is the trimming material?" she asked.

"I can't quite decide," I returned.

Here We Have Navy Blue Serge Banded with Dark and Light Blue Felt.

By this time we had drawn nearer. "Why, it's felt," Pam exclaimed. "What a clever idea!"

"The same trimming that is so good-looking for clothes for grown-ups," I said.

"See what an effective note that straight line down the front, finished with a pointed motif, gives," Pam pointed out.

"And to my mind, there's nothing so lovely as two shades of blue combined," I continued. "It always makes a stunning trimming."

Pam agreed heartily. "I'm going to make a little navy blue serge like that for a Christmas present for a little friend of mine," she declared.

"See if you can be milliner enough to make an adorable blue felt poke to go with it," I suggested, glancing at the cunning one which the little girl in question wore.

Pam noted its crown, just pulled in to a perky, little brim, and decided she could do one like it.

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JANUARY 11.

Very lively, possibly exciting, conditions must be forecast from this day's planetary activities. In all lines of interest there may be a decided reaction to the high stimulus of Mars, under the trine aspect with Luna as well as the sextile to Mercury. This is read as spurring to vigorous enterprise with bold and adventurous moves in the direction of whatever engages the attention. Business, employment and the professions should respond to this energizing ray. Domestic, social and romantic affairs should feel the friendly Venus rule.

Those whose birthday it is should have a lively and progressive year with all affairs and interests stirring to happy conclusions. Those in the employment of others are in line for recognition, and home and heart affairs should thrive. A child born on this day will be talented, accomplished, popular and enterprising and should succeed mainly through its own initiative and energy.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

What's Best for a Bad Stomach?

Nine-tenths of all stomach trouble—indigestion, sourness, gas, pain, heartburn, etc., are caused by an excess of acid in the stomach.

Artificial digestents, such as pepsin, are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids, and instead neutralize the acid that has upset your stomach with a spoonful or two tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia, taken with a little water. This instantly sweetens the stomach and stops the pain and discomfort and your food digests as nature intended. For quick positive relief from Acid Stomach expenditures.

For year ending June 30, 1921, expenditures of federal government alone were about $50 per capita, or $250 per annum per family, as against $7.07 per capita in 1914.

Taking the 17-months period, during which we were at war it is found that the various enlisted men received in pay during that time the following sums: United States, $570.00; France, $27.55; Italy, $33.06; Russia, $7.41; Great Britain, $138.70; New Zealand, $138.70; South Africa, $138.70. It is understood Belgium paid a slightly higher rate than France; Canada paid the same as the United States; while Australia paid approximately $42.00 a month, the highest amount of any country.

Every state in the nation except six has made provision for bonuses or assistance to ex-soldiers These benefits are estimated to total over $184,000,000. In addition, the national government gave cash bonuses at time of discharge.

Roughly, the foregoing is a summary of facts involved in the bonus question. It will be for people of United States to decide whether in face of such expenditures as have already been made and as are being made to maintain our government at present time, it is wise or necessary to enact proposed bonus legislation for benefit of UNINJURED veterans, at a cost estimated at from $1,500,000,000 to $5,000,000,000.

of the five Commissariats which are now in the Union Government solely (Foreign Affairs, Army and Fleet, Foreign Trade, Ways and Communications, Post and Telegraph.) The other five are heads of the Combined Commissariats, which are organized both in the Union and in the several republics National Economy, Rikov, Labor, Schmid, Workers' and Peasants' Control, Kuibishev, Provisioning, Bruchanov, and Finance, Sokolnikov. Rikov has also the title of vice-president. Other vice-presidents are Kamanev, Tsurupa, Chonbarya and Ourachmaleshweely. A general head of the State Political Police, named by the Council of Commissars, has, also, a seat in the Council and a voice, but no vote.

RULES NATION

The Council of Commissars is not only a Cabinet composed of executives directing the whole activity of Russian life. It is also a powerful legislative body, sanctioning and annulling economic proposals.

It was the Council of Commissars which refused to ratify the Urquart concession after Krassin, Russia's representatives to Britain, had signed it with Urquart. Lenin himself signed the annulment in the interval between his two severe illnesses of last year.

Russia is a government by boards of committees. Each Central Executive Committee has its Presidium, each Commissariat has its Collegium, elected by the Council of Commissars from the staff of the Commissariat and having advisory and critical powers.

CONTROLS INDUSTRY

The Supreme Council of National Economy operates or controls all industry in Russia, public and private. It operates canning factories, the wine industry, the Ural stone industry, etc., and it controls the coal, oil and salt syndicates, the leather trust, the tobacco, match and other trusts of the Government, as well as exercising control over all private manufacture.

The Workers and Peasants' Inspection is the auditing and critical bureau of the Government. This is the organization which has been greatly strengthened recently in order to economize production, eliminate graft and to propose new forms of industrial organization. It is designed, furthermore, to build up this Commissariat thru a workers' control within the Government.

The Council of Labor and Defense is a co-ordinating body appointed by the Council of Commissars. It decides on distribution of raw materials and labor. Formerly Lenin was president of this body also.

GET SMALL PAY

Two other important committees are appointed by the Council of Commissars, the State Planning Committee and the Main Concessions Committee.

Members of the All Russian Congress and members of the Central Executive Committee receive only expenses during the sittings. Official salaries of the Commissars and of members of the Presidium of the Executive Committee do not reach more than $75 or $100 a month and, all being communists, must give half of all above $50 a month to the party funds. "Expenses," however, cover all necessities, and there are many important perquisites in housing, auto mobiles, etc.

FRANCE AND GERMANY ARE DRIFTING TOGETHER THRU REALIZATION OF DANGERS

(By HAROLD E. STEARNS)

PARIS, Jan. 1'. — The French have a phrase for a type of valuable illumination, either in a book or an essay, which, while it lacks the dignity of a scholarly fullness, connotes a kind of quick and not entirely invalid insight into the subject under discussion—and the phrase is un apercu de quelque chose, awkwardly translated "a rough estimate of something." With, I hope, becoming modesty, all I shall attempt in this brief note is an apercu on what I regard as at present the most interesting subject of Continental politics—namely, the position of England

One's excuse for doing this from Paris lies simply in the fact that nowhere else in the world is it easier to be objective about Great Britain. I have even heard Englishmen talk sense about the British Empire, in Paris, but I cross my heart and swear I have never heard them do so in London. At home we are too sentimental about England—either for or against—while in Germany any isle looks good when you are shipwrecked.

To sum up what is in the process of taking place here now and what will change the whole map of Europe and the world is not really difficult. It is this. England has abandoned her traditional policy of maintaining the "balance of power." Whether Labor rules, or whether Mr. Baldwin aspires, the practical policy will be the same, for the simple reason that England cannot help herself. Great Britain, quietly and without saying much, as is her customary way, has decided that the Continental game is no longer worth the candle. To keep the nations of this strife-accustomed section of the world at peace by the method of arming both sides to a dispute equally no longer appears to those at number 10 Downing street as an extremely profitable policy.

But consider what this means. The British Empire for generations has been maintained in a state of comparative equilibrium by three forces, working for practical purposes in harmony—the "balance of power" in Europe, the sentiment of the Colonies, and the intrinsic political and social genius of the English people.

The first of these supporting buttresses is gone, gone forever The second of them, the support of the Colonies, has been seriously weakened by the shock of the war and its aftermath, but I question if it is not still at bottom very powerful. Economic development of the Colonies, business and commercial rivalries between them, has not yet reached the point where open disruption is possible, even if the recent Imperial Conference in London brot to light some rather embarrassing facts. The third, the English themselves, are still there, and stronger in one way than ever.

There is no more politically minded people in the world than the English today. Even the unemployed mechanic who waits for the local "pub" in Lambeth to open knows more about the situation in Europe and has more sensible ideas respecting its real solution than has the average prosperous bourgeois retailer of Lyon The wise gentlemen who frame British policy as a whole (by the method of unconscious agreement) feel that they can still rely upon the last two groups. But with the first gone, they have of late been looking around with an appraising eye for a substitute. Need I draw the inevitable conclusion? That they have found it—in America?

That is the plain fact of the matter England today is trying to substitute the support of America for the support which she formerly gained by maintaining the balance of power on this Continent. And I ought to add that the chances are better than even that she will get it, for there are no propagandists like the English and no people who know better than they how to gain approval once they go after it

The wooing of the United States has become almost embarrassing during the last few years, and although Mr. Ramsay MacDonald will probably bluster about the American debt, if he comes to power, and even perhaps attempt to have it cancelled in return for a general European settlement, at the same time no opportunity will be lost to throw bouquets across the Atlantic. I should even go so far as to say that England will sacrifice Russia, if necessary, as she has already sacrificed Japan, provided it means a sweet smile from the obdurate maid of isolation There is hardly any length to which England will not go to gain our support right now

Hence, writing from Paris, I solemnly warn the citizenry back home—and especially all newspaper editors—to watch their step carefully from this moment on. The propaganda barrage has just begun. Have we not already had the Irish Free State, the Debt Funding Agreement and Mr Lloyd George at the tomb of Lincoln? But these are only the more onvious gestures.

Yet why, I can imagine most Americans asking, can one be so cocksure and dogmatic about England's having abandoned her old balance of power policy? I must repeat, I should not write this way were I anywhere but in Paris. Here however, one cannot escape from the conclusion that irresistible forces, like the wind and the tide, are making for an economic alliance between Germany and France.

Either it is that or the whole Continent will go to the devil, and there is a self-protective instinct, even in Europeans, which comes to the fore when the emergency is desperate Examine every bit of news you receive from Europe today, especially the news cabled about the accords in the Ruhr and the Rhineland, coupled with the reports of direct conversations between France and Germany (that was the headlines in the Paris press this morning and it seemed to me for a moment that I was back in the old days before the Entente Cordiale had been formed), and can you escape the conclusion that, almost every natural force is making for this understanding?

I cannot—and neither, I feel certain, can shrewd British observers England has always been able to escape the inevitable by always knowing in advance when it was coming, and then gracefully stepping out of the way

Dramatically enough, only one thing at present stands in the way of this accord. Peoples do not count, for today we have the newspapers, the movies, the wireless and publicity, even war memories do not count. Economic pressure, the desire to survive in a ruthless and competitive and possessive world, overtops all. The one thing that does count in this case is a man, one man, and his name is Caillaux If he were dead, the plan would go forward much more speedily But as it is, the politicians are fearful of him. He can always come back and say, "But this is only what I preached some twenty years ago. Was the entire war fought in vain?" And no politician in France yet dares to answer what we all know was the truth, "Yes."

WHY WOMEN LOOK 60 AT 40

With dark circles under their eyes sallow complexions, drawn expressions, drooping shoulders, a lagging step, many women of forty have the appearance of women of sixty. In many cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms, as headaches, backache, nervousness, displacements, and irregularities which indicate ailments peculiar to women. If all women so afflicted would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound it would restore them to a normal healthy condition, and the premature signs of age will soon disappear.

Putting Wells Over

AS CIVILIZATION becomes more complex it becomes more certain that "one-half of the world does not know how the other half lives." For example, a circular is being sent out by an organization calling itself the "American Super-Race Foundation." It has a number of M. D.'s, Ph. D.'s, M. A.'s and other obviously superior persons as officials.

Its promoters describe it as "An organization preparing the way for the selection and the education of Superior Human Beings, each Race Separately, for the evolvement of a Superior Race." It sports a striking letterhead, and calls attention to two of the meetings as follows: "Congress of Superior Caucasians, Jan. 17, 18, 19, 1924, Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City;" and "Congress of Superior Mixed Races, Oct. 16, 17, 18, 1924, New York City."

The circular received naively asks: "Is there a Superior Human Being in Your City or County?" It might have added: "Don't all speak at once." Assuming that the circular has been sent to every American city, the response will be a resounding "Yes, plenty of them." In this case it is a Superior Caucasian, for the American Super-Race Foundation start, to get a nucleus to surround and augment the Superior Caucasians that have started this Wellsian foundation. But, all ye who propose to enter for the job or jobs that will inevitably fall to the lot of the Superior Caucasians to be selected, know that the selection involves a stiff examination, "eugenic, psychological and vocational." For you will have to do your part in shouldering the White Man's Burden.

The Superior Mixed Races Congress falls later, and will no doubt depend upon the response to the Superior Caucasian Race call. We hope it will not fall on deaf ears. It is time to put H. G. Wells over before he loses heart of a Superior Race possibility. Why not all of us become Superior?

Senator Borah On Tax Reduction

SENATOR BORAH shows that he understands the strength and temper of the demand for tax reduction when he advocates giving it the form and fervor of a popular "crusade." In his address at the Republican Club in New York he presented this issue as the people of the country feel and see it, and as they are trying to make their representatives in Congress feel and see it.

Commenting on the fact that local, state and federal taxes have jumped from $2,194,000,000 in 1913 to $8,363,000,000 in 1921, he declared that this increase of taxes "presents the most searching tragedy of American life. The anxiety, the discouragement, the broken plans which lie beneath this growing tax burden language is inadequate to tell. In fact, no man, woman or child, no part of the country and no kind of legitimate business escapes the demoralizing effect of high taxes." And serious as this menace is in the East, it has become, he says, a life or death proposition in the great agricultural areas of the country, where homes and the labors of half a century are threatened by the blood-sucking vampire of taxation.

Tax reduction is a question upon which the taxpayers of the country are more united than any other. They are virtually a unit in their demand for relief from the multiplying exactions of the tax collector and there is no other subject of public interest on which they feel more intensely. The fact that Congressmen of all political persuasions are making haste to promise this relief shows the strength of the demand. But that a good many of them have not yet fully realized the danger of playing double with the people on this subject is indicated by the attitude of many of them on the bonus. They might as well understand now as later, as Senator Borah says, that "there is no avoiding or side-stepping this issue. One is either for tax reduction or he is against it. One has a right to be for the bonus or he has the right to be for tax reduction. But you cannot be for both. You cannot take off a temporary burden of $140,000,000 or $150,000,000 and lay on a permanent burden or obligation of $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000 and call it tax reduction." Nor can you fool the people when you do that into thinking you have lightened their burdens.

Senator Borah in this, as in other things, maintains his reputation for political and intellectual honesty. And other Congressmen will find that it will pay them to follow his example.

The Russian Debate

THE prospect of early recognition of the Russian Government by the expected Labor ministry in Great Britain lends significance to the outcropping of debate in the Senate over the question. That the American Government has been under considerable pressure to open diplomatic relations with the Soviet Administration is admitted; in the familiar labyrinth of arguments, pro and con, heard in the Senate last Monday there is unmistakable evidence of this pressure. It does not come from Russia. It comes from many influential Americans who want to enter, who have been invited to enter, the Russian economic field. In rejecting their appeals, the Administration is not inspired entirely by the "admitted fact," as Senator Lenroot calls it, that the Russian Communist party is conducting propaganda aimed to break down the present form of government in the United States—propaganda which may or may not be directly dominated and controlled by the Russian Government itself.

It would take more than futile and misguided Communist propaganda by crack-brained Communists to determine our policy toward Russia, and it is inept and idle for Senator Lodge to pretend that this is the sole barrier to our recognition of the Soviet Government. Rightly does Senator Borah say that "there is something more behind" our Russian policy. As if in confirmation of his assertion, Senator Lenroot told the Senate, in some detail, of the confiscation of American property in Russia, part of it destroyed and part of it in the hands of Communists; he said that public avowal of an intention to restore this property was necessary before the United States could have any relations with Moscow. It was not a matter of negotiation after recognition, he declared; intention to restore it must be made before, and negotiation as to the amount of damages and compensation to American citizens for losses incurred by the confiscation would come afterward. He stressed the point that no such pledge had been given, altho Tchitcherin had intimated that it was likely to come.

If this be the real inwardness of the Coolidge-Hughes policy, much can be said in its defense; much more, indeed, than in the defense of the elaborated arguments that the Russian Government is inspiring propaganda aimed at a revolution of the working class in this country. It is strange that this phase of the situation should be kept in the background. Senator Borah takes at its face value the repeated assertion of Russian officials that this restoration of property and compensation of losses will take place after the renewal of diplomatic relations between the United States and Russia; the Administration wants a formal pledge to precede recognition. It wants some sort of avowal of property rights, so that the "Communistic curse" will be removed.

It is seemingly a small point, and if there is a genuine desire in both Washington and Moscow to resume diplomatic relations it should be removed without difficulty. If Britain recognizes Russia, pressure upon the American Government to do so will be redoubled. Unless there are unconquerable and invincible prejudices in the minds of our officialdom yet to be surmounted, constructive action toward Russia will be taken; action in defense of our economic and business interests in Russia; action which will show that our foreign policy is at least partly based on facts and not on academic mirages.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, Jan. 11—Thots while strolling around New York: A cold, brigat day in Central Park. Pony carts carrying bits of furred wealth. Chargers capering on the bridle path. Sagging faces along the benches. An airplane drifts lazily toward Jersey.

There's Keats Speed, the editor. Hand holding lovers ignorant of the world about them. The Mall with its double chain of lights. Maurice, the dancer, leaving his car for a walk home. On all sides the restless, muffled beat of a city.

The Shakespeare garden. A spot for day dreaming. Old and yellow women who carry rubber tipped canes. And look upon New York of today with sardonic humor. Squirrels timidly approaching the peanut stands. They don't seem afraid of me. Let's see, what is it a squirrel likes?

Central Park West. Home of the Century Theatre with a nine o'clock revue blooming on its roof. Stable studios. Where ironic poets and artists gather. The Ethical Culture School. With freezingly aloof architecture. The Hotel des Artistes. Home of Christy and others who make the beautiful girls on the magazine pages.

Buildings in a symphony of gray. Durland's riding academy. The well fed. Warmly dressed. Mounted police. Leashed dogs. Top hats. White gloves—the swirl of the metropolitan pageant. The sweet chime of church bells. With a Lorelei warning in their modulation.

A few brownstone fronts on West Second street—mementos of a vanishing past. The Dakota apartment with its big yard and subway arcade of shops. Strictly for the tenants. A street hallowed with happy memories. Of days when everybody along it knew and loved my dog.

And here's the beginning of the Drive. The Huyler and Schwab mansions. And the Hudson with battleships tugging at anchors. The Palisades with their purple haze. The chill formality of dark and imposing homes. And here I am with a fit of depression. What a world, what a world!

A group of young and impressionable New York girls has been flitting about a pseudo duke—a dark Spanish looking fellow who registered at one of the smart hotels. He was the kind who lived in a small bathless room and answered the telephone with the declaration that he was his own secretary or valet. He became a figure in the cafes and even when a newspaper challenged his title, his ego was unbruised. Two weeks ago the hotel sealed his room when he stepped out, in an effort to collect his bill. Later an inventory was made of his posessions. He had two suits of clothes—a business suit and evening suit—a copy of the social register and a letter showing he had been dismissed from a clerkship in a small midwest city.

W. C. Fields has been a droll silent juggler in musical revues for many years. This season he stepped into the leading comedy part in a musical play and is now one of the fixtures in the theatrical firmament. He has a straight talking part and says he will never go back to juggling again.

Few know the terrible tedium of proficiency in juggling. When Fields was in the follies he used to go to the New Amsterdam theatre daily at nine in the morning and work until late in the afternoon. He told me once that he was five years mastering a little trick that appeared to the audience to be the simplest feat of all. He went thru a rigid physical culture routine to keep himself in condition.

The reception of a juggling act is generally received with passive interest. Yet jugglers are highly paid performers. In vaudeville they receive twice the salary of acrobatic or dumb acts. It is an axiom among men that no one will walk out on a juggling act. The audience is always looking for the juggler to miss.

WALT MASON

THE GUN

I said to Robert Ginseng Bunn, a youth of fair renown, "It's foolishness to pack a gun, as you weave thru the town." "Oh, garfer, these be parlous times," the goodly youth replied, "and godless men, intent on crimes, pervade the countryside. To me it seems there is no sense in hanging out the mon without a try at self defense, and so I pack a gun." "Far beter dig up fifty cents than ply a gun," said I, "for better yield to strong arm gents than make the bullets fly. You cannot say whom you will kill when once you start to shoot; with slugs and buckshot you may fill some innocent galoot." One night some roughnecks made him stop and dig the good long green, and Robert fired and shot a cop who hurried to the scene. Now ruined is his useful life, and he abides in jail, and I have heard his heartsick wife curse a bitter wail. Remorse, like some old taunting hag, is with him love to fare, as wearily the long years drag in sorrow and disgrace. Man set hell to be informed when his case is read in court, and not be sentenced to the pen or made the stagnant's sport. But life will always spell woman to Robert Ginseng Bunn, for much of grief how much of care from carrying a gun!

FACTS ABOUT THE BONUS

Editor The Tribune.

The bonus question and tax reduction are the two live issues before Congress. Politicians seeking re-election hate to commit themselves on either measure at the present time. Real statesmen have been trying to work out these national problems and give the people the facts. If the people know the facts, public opinion may be relied upon to bring about a satisfactory conclusion.

The three different measures placed before Congress for a soldiers' bonus are the Fordney, McCumber and Mott bills. All three bills give ex-service men the option of choosing any one, but only one, of the following plans:

1. Adjusted service pay, cash award. 2. Adjusted service certificates, insurance. 3. Vocational training aid. 4. Farm or home aid. 5. Land settlement aid. Cost involved in these bills varies as does time in which government must pay.

The McCumber bill has made most progress, as it has been reported on favorably by Senate Finance Committee. But from taxpayers' standpoint and for good of country, the Fordney bill is considered best as the government has longer time in which to pay.

In considering McCumber bill, the Finance Committee believes minimum possible cost would be $1,560,000,000 if every veteran took the cash payment plan. The maximum would be $5,273,000,000 if every veteran took adjusted service certificates (insurance.) Under what Finance Committee believes would be real operation of legislation, total cost would be about $4,396,000,000 scattered over a period of 20 years.

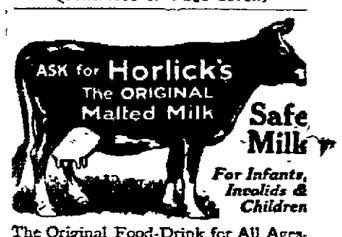

Comparing governmental expenditures for 11 months of fiscal year 1921 with whole year 1914, it is found that federal expenditures were $2,700,000,000 more than expenditures for 1914. Proposed bonus would be in addition to these

OIL FEVER DRAWS

mit the veracity of this statement, yet there is a lack of vision of possible future accomplishments in agriculture for the reason that the almighty dollar has been too close to the eye and has obscured the larger and more permanent resources of the country."

Other defenders of agriculture pointed out that the development of oil fields not only is attracting wholesale numbers of farm workers, but the drilling and finding of oil lays waste too many acres of valuable farm lands almost daily.

Chief among the products to be affected as a result of drillings, it was learned, is cotton.

Agriculturists, almost without exception, expressed the belief that attempts to prevent farm labor from joining the ranks of the oil workers, where they receive big weekly dividends on their labor, would prove futile. Working with this in mind, they are urging employment of the diversified system of farming to bring out the best from farms unhampered by the bright light of oil-field dividends.

"The plan of Southern farmers must shift from straight cotton farming to a more diversified plan, using poultry, dairy cows and other live stock," Riley advised. "'Live at home,' is our slogan, and here and there over the country we find farmers who are trying to change their system of farming. This, of course, is possible if the resident owns the farm, but it is slow work where 75 percent of the farmers are renters, sublessees or share-croppers, with no housing or livestock.

"The attitude of the banker and the merchant has always been one of helpfulness, consistent with good business practices, but the character of the risks the banker is asked to take is such that he is compelled to be very conservative in financing agriculture."

RANKS OF BONUS

ished their campaign in any sense but they realize the strength of the opposition which has been created and they will hold individual members to their pledges fighting them in their respective constituencies if they do not fulfill the pledges given.

One of the most unfortunate phases of the situation is the existence of a well-meant but poorly conducted attempt to influence congress in favor of tax revision and against the bonus. Form letters by the thousands are pouring into Washington prepared by banks and business houses with the idea of making congress abandon the bonus and take up tax revision. Senators and members of the house are rarely impressed by form letters. They are much more interested in letters personally written and sincerely composed without influence from any business institutions. As a matter of fact there is a good deal of individual letter writing going on and it is having a remarkable effect. The present drift away from the bonus and toward tax revision can be attributed in large part to the letters being written by people in all parts of the country to their representatives in congress.

It isn't the lengthy letter that impresses the men on Capitol Hill. Brief expressions of opinion on whether tax revision or a bonus should be given the right of way tell as much as a long argument. What congress wants to know really is whether the advocates of a bonus are numerically greater than the advocates of tax reduction.

The struggle in the house is by no means over—in fact it has not yet reached a climax. The bonus men will try to get consideration for their measure ahead of the tax bill and will do their best to stall the tax bill and even may attempt to incorporate the bonus proposals as a part of the tax measure so as to make difficult a veto of the whole thing by the chief executive.

Much depends on the ultimate attitude of the Democrats, who, however, are divided at present into all sorts of groups and factions. Unorganized opposition will not beat anything in congress and for the moment the group in favor of tax reduction is steadily gaining in strength. With the further help of public opinion the next two weeks will see some conclusive tests of whether the bonus can really be side-tracked in favor of a tax reduction bill.

GERBAULT WILL

Atlantic alone for 102 days.

"It was the first time I was ever aboard a big liner," Gerbault said, "and I didn't feel quite at home. I felt that the "Paris" machinery was replacing too much the work of man and I felt lost without the other part of me—the 'Firecrest'."

Then Gerbault revealed his new project of the Pacific voyage.

"I will not try to break any records for speed," he said. "I am not pressed for time. I shall visit the islands which the big steamship routes don't touch. Only one thousand miles from the Panama Canal there are two islands belonging to Equador which the feet of civilized man have never touched. It is said they are inhabited by cannibals, but the 'Firecrest' will be armed."

Gerbault may take a partner on this second voyage, providing the partner is willing to take the necessary chances.

Gerbault has been awarded the cross of the Legion of Honor for his courageous exploit and it is expected that he will also receive from the Academy of Sports the Grand Prix of 1923, awarded each year to the Frenchman who has accomplished the most notable achievement in the field of sport.

CANAL NETS

when the canal was first opened, but since that time the activity there has increased every day. The record to date is the passage of 35 vessels thru the canal in 24 hours. The average for the year 1923 was a little over 12 vessels each day.

CAPACITY APPROACHED

Experts declare the maximum number of boats that can be taken thru in 24 hours is 50 and that in a few years it is expected that many will constitute the daily average. The existing plant can be utilized for another 30 years before replacements are necessary, and when the time comes for a general renewing of the system it is planned to enlarge the project so as to permit the transportation of a larger number of vessels.

The most important feature of the improvement program consists of a plan to build a larger reservoir in the mountains east of Lake Gatun. At the present time the capacity of the lake is sufficient for the number of ships passing thru the canal, but if the traffic increases to a considerable extent a shortage of water will result during the dry season in the Canal Zone.

FACE WATER PROBLEM

Every time a ship passes thru the locks the volume of water in the lake is lessened, and at the end of the three-month period, when the mountain streams which feed the lake have been dried up, the water supply recedes to a very low level.

All in all, officials contend that the building of the Panama Canal was the best business proposition the United States ever entered. The importance of the canal to American shippers is shown by the fact that 40 percent of the vessels which pass thru are owned by American firms. The actual return in dollars and cents in regard to the value of the canal as a part of the defense system, of course, cannot be estimated.

In addition, the Treasury Department will receive $10,000,000 annually, and perhaps more after a few years, that otherwise would be sought in the pocketbook of Mr. Taxpayer.
